

A legacy in limestone.

BRUHN

Bruhn Limestone is a leading supplier of Mount Gambier limestone, operating one of South Australia's most established quarries and supplying architects, builders and developers across Australia.

Formed over 30 million years within the Marte deposits of the Limestone Coast, Mount Gambier limestone is defined by its natural beauty, durability, and inherent thermal and acoustic performance.

The range includes structural limestone blocks, architectural mouldings, cladding and custom stone elements used across contemporary architecture and well-crafted residential and commercial projects of all scales.

Bruhn delivers a fully integrated quarry-to-site service, managing extraction, manufacturing, profiling and specialised transport to ensure consistency and reliability across every project.

Bespoke Capabilities

In addition to a standard range, we collaborate with architects and builders to translate design intent into custom, precision-cut architectural profiles.

With an 80-year quarrying legacy and over 7,000 projects supplied nationwide, Mount Gambier limestone brings depth, weight and permanence to both contemporary and classically inspired architecture.

Available in organic tones ranging from soft creams to warm biscuit, it is a highly responsive material that contributes to visual quality, environmental performance and return on investment.

Thermal Mass

Limestone absorbs and slowly releases heat, moderating internal temperatures, enhancing comfort and improving year-round energy efficiency.

Acoustic Separation

The density of solid stone reduces airborne sound transmission, creating quieter, more comfortable interior environments.

Low Embodied Carbon

Locally sourced and minimally processed, Mount Gambier limestone offers significantly lower embodied carbon than many facade materials. Its durability and reusability support long-term, circular design outcomes.

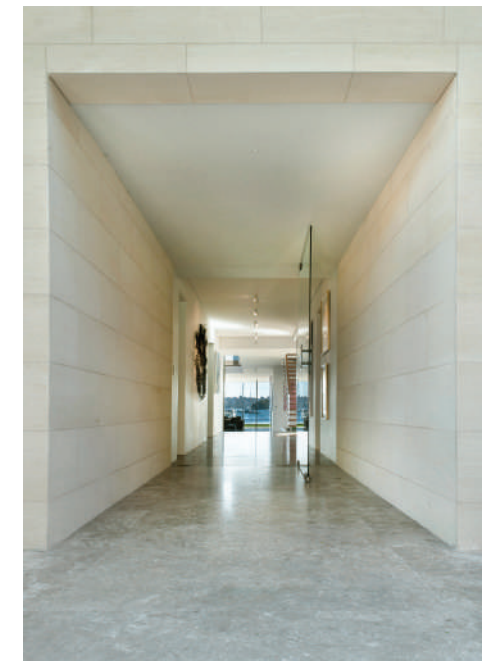

Construction Efficiency

Large-format, dimensionally consistent blocks enable efficient installation and deliver a complete architectural finish without secondary linings or applied coatings.

Shaped by time, refined by hand,
and made to endure.
